Art From the Heart of Rural Arkansas

When Arkansas was still a territory, farmers accounted for 90 percent of Arkansas's population, and today, almost half of our residents still live in rural settings. Life on homesteads and in small towns has shaped the state's character and has fostered a spirit of self-reliance and a make-do attitude. Even though our state's agriculture has evolved and our urban centers have grown, rural Arkansas still matters. This is where much of our heritage originated, where many of our beloved traditions and stories began.

Arkansas Heritage Month is a time to join with others around the state in cultivating our rural legacy. The Fine Arts Center wants to showcase rural Arkansas with a month long juried show. The 40 finalist from this competition will be included in Art From the Heart of Rural Arkansas, a slide show provided to Arkansas schools.

Eligibility

All artworks must be for sale with a 30% commission paid to The Fine Arts Center upon sale. All entries must be family friendly.
